Sententia

ways of thinking, ways of being, ways of writing

THE FIFTH ANNUAL UNDERGRADUATE SYMPOSIUM

When change is constant, writing can be a powerful expression. Sententia evokes not only ways of living, but ways of knowing, ways of being and thinking and writing, which, in times of flux, open the possibility for transformation and writerly acts of resistance. If we have the power to make our own stories and spaces and selves, then how do we activate sententia as a call to writerly action and resistance? How do we activate a call to dismantle and decolonize dominant "instruction in living" and make our own paths? How do we explore diverse ways of acting, speaking, living, knowing, being, thinking, writing—and languaging—in sonic acts of sententia?

"Nothing is absolute. Everything changes, everything moves, everything revolves, everything flies and goes away." –Frida Kahlo

PROMPTS TO HELP YOU WRITE

Are we entering an era of empathy?

What do we think about when we think about "accessibility"?

How are the past and present—and the future—entangled?

How can I redefine my (writing) self? Are there limitations to how many times I can redefine my (writing) self?

How do we write from "here" and where is "here"?

What does it mean to re-begin? To re-write? Re-vision?

From where do beginnings emerge?

We are seeking creative non-fiction papers from undergraduate students across disciplines that engage with the theme of Sententia and invite you to submit your 250 word abstract for consideration.
